

It is ridiculous that groups who regularly cry out that they should not be stifled in what they broadcast would attempt to do the same to XM satellite radio. Not only is it hypocritical, but it goes against the very spirit of business competition today. It seems to me that the same laws that prevent mergers of huge companies for fear of monopolies should also protect the rights of smaller companies to compete. It is also appalling that you would attempt to block the opportunity for the public to decide whose weather and traffic they feel best serves them. Isn't that what our country is suppose to be about?
